Ford Says Arms Pact Progress Made

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — President Ford said his meeting with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev moved negotiations forward on a nuclear arms treaty and a second discussion Saturday will bring even more progress.

The simmering Israeli-Arab conflict also came up in the talks Wednesday, and one American source said this was a happy surprise.

The Middle East was not due for discussion until the Saturday meeting, he said, but was moved forward when the arms limitation issuewent so

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said his impression of Brezhnev's attitude at the Ford meeting was that the Soviets are not actively opposing U.S. peace-keeping efforts in the Middle East, though they may have some reservations about the approach in attempting to reach an interim agreement.

The minisummit, lasting 2 hours and 15 minutes, between the U.S. President and the Soviet leader dealt primarily with a strategic arms limitation treaty. Ford said afterward: "When we meet again on Saturday further progress will materialize."

He and Brezhnev made optimistic assessments in a joint, unscheduled news conference. Ford added that the "discussions concerning strategic arms limitation . . . were very constructive."

The Soviet leader said: "I want peace and tranquility to reign in Europe. I want all nations to live in peace and not interfere in each other's affairs.

"It was businesslike and very friendly," the President said. Ford did not elaborate, and neither did Kissinger in a late afternoon briefing with reporters. However, Kissinger said that he and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko had made progress on the issue of verifying compliance of a treaty when they met in Geneva earlier this month.

That was the first indication by any American official of movement on that crucial issue, and makes more likely the possibility of a treaty being signed this year.

Ford and Brezhnev are in Helsinki to sign a European security agreement hammered out by the delegates of 35 nations over the past 30 months.

Ford also attended opening sessions of the European security conference and listened to 20-minute speeches by nine heads of state plus opening remarks from U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and Finnish President Urho Kekkonen, whose country is host.

As he listened, Ford worked on a range of issues prepared by his staff concerning mostly domestic

At one point in his briefing, Kissinger appeared to be modifying Ford's assessment about progress on nuclear arms.

What went on, he said, was an elaboration of positions, adding, again in more cautions terms than Ford, that he hopes progress will be made

If this comes about, then an agreement could be reached on a nuclear arms treaty, and Brezhnev would be expected to come to the United States this year to sign the accord.

In fact, Kissinger said he is working under the assumption the Soviet leader will be in the United States in 1975 for a new summit.

Professors Petition For Union Election

By DICK HOLMAN Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty members have taken the second step to unionize for setting wages, hours and employment conditions. -

The UNL Chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) has filed a petition in the State Court of Industrial Relations seeking an election and recognition as the exclusive bargaining agent for UNL faculty.

"The faculty has to decide whether or not they want collective bargaining," said English Prof. John Robinson, AAUP chapter president. "Our position is they would be better off with AAUP." Recognition Asked

The case petitions the NU Board of Regents to recognize AAUP as "the appropriate unit" for faculty union membership. The regents sparked the issue in a surprise move last April when they temporarily suspended granting of tenure to faculty who had met the stipulated requirements and who were recommended by the chancellor.

Regents requested and approved in May an administration-drafted plan to limit tenure to 75% of the total eligible faculty. The tenure controversy among UNL teachers that followed was only one area in which they complained they were inadequately represented in UNL governance and decision-making.

In the first step to unionize, the AAUP waged a signature-card campaign to get the minimum 30% of faculty who would be represented to request the election. Patrick Healey, attorney for AAUP, said Wednesday "roughly 55% to 60% of the faculty signed the cards, allowing the petition to be filed.

It states the representation unit consists of all full-time UNL professors, associate professors, assistant professors, and all instructors who teach full-time or who are full-time librarians.

Lower-level administrators, such as directors of UNL academic schools, are also included.

Specifically Excluded

Those specifically excluded are top administrators, such as chancellors and their assistants, deans, members of the College of Law, Extension and assistant Extension agents, associate Extension home economists and agriculturalists, and staff at the School of Technical Agriculture at Curtis.

"We feel rather strongly that would not be appropriate to include anybody outside the UNL campus," Healey said, although the court may consider representation beyond that.

The election could be ordered "early this fall" if the Board of Regents agrees, Healey said.

Could Be Delayed

However, if regents disagree "in some area, there may be the necessity of hearings and legal briefs to resolve" any questions. Or if another labor group seeks recognition, he said that could also delay an election order, as the court decides which unit would be most workable.

Meanwhile, "We have served notice" to regents and other labor units, "to give them an opportunity to present their position," Healey said. "We're awaiting the responses." At their May meeting, regents awarded tenure to almost all the faculty whose recommendations had been suspended, bringing the tenure fraction to 76% of the 1,131 UNL total.

But AAUP's filing of the petition indicates the regents' adtion did not extinguish faculty ire. Meanwhile, a regents-ordered study of university-wide faculty tenure is underway, with an October deadline.

By United Press International Two of the nation's largest food processors Wednesday raised wholesale prices on flour and sugar. The higher flour prices were the first solid evidence of the impact of Russian purchases of U.S. grain. Besides the Soviet wheat deals, a sugar expert said Russian purchases of raw sugar on international markets were responsible, in part, for the boost in sugar prices. The increases in flour and sugar prices followed substantial hikes earlier this week in coffee prices and a prediction by Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board of higher prices for bread as a result of the Russian wheat purchases. In Minneapolis, General Mills, one of the nation's largest millers, raised wholesale flour prices 1.6 cents a pound effective Friday. The increase affects flour purchased on grocery shelves and not bulk flour used in the mass production of bread and other bakery products. The higher flour prices, however, were the first solid evidence the Russian wheat purchases are driving up consumer prices in the United States. "It has to do with the developments in the world and domestic grain markets, especially the Soviet Union developments and the possibility of drought there and their purchase of American grain," said Lou Gelfand, a spokesman for Pillsbury, another major

"Since July 3 Kansas City September wheat futures have gone from $3.10 a bushel to $4," he said. "This would justify an increase in family flour prices of $2 a hundredweight."

But Gelfand said Pillsbury was waiting for the Agriculture Department's Aug. 11 crop report before deciding whether to match the General Mills in-

Meanwhile, Amstar, the nation's largest sugar producer, raised its wholesale prices effective immediately.

The wholesale price of a fivepound bag of grocery sugar rose to $1.64 from $1.54 two weeks ago. It was as low as $1.21 July 1.

Saul Kolodny;, Amstar director of research, said sugar prices have risen rapidly in the last two weeks. He cited peak demand in the hot summer months, price manipulation by sugar producing countries, primarily by Philippines, and large purchases on foreign markets by the Soviet Union, Saudi Arabia and China. Sugar commodity experts said the drought that severely cut the Russian wheat crop also did extensive damage to that nation's sugar beet crop. Kolodny also said the frost damage that destroyed much of Brazil's coffee crop, prompting higher ground coffee prices, also may have affected 5 to 10% of that nation's sugar crop.

In Minneapolis, General Mills, one of the nation's largest millers, raised wholesale flour prices 1.6 cents a pound effective Friday. The increase affects flour purchased on grocery shelves and not bulk flour used in the mass production of bread and other bakery products. The higher flour prices, however, were the first solid evidence the Russian wheat purchases are driving up consumer prices in the United

"It has to do with the developments in the world and domestic grain markets, especially the Soviet Union developments and the possibility of drought there and their purchase of American grain," said Lou Gelfand, a spokesman for Pillsbury, another major miller.

"Since July 3 Kansas City September wheat futures have gone from $3.10 a bushel to $4," he said. "This would justify an increase in family flour prices of $2 a hundredweight."

But Gelfand said Pillsbury was waiting for the Agriculture Department's Aug. 11 crop report before deciding whether to match the General Mills in-

Meanwhile, Amstar, the nation's largest sugar producer, raised its wholesale prices effective immediately.

The wholesale price of a fivepound bag of grocery sugar rose to $1.64 from $1.54 two weeks ago. It was as low as $1.21 July 1. Saul Kolodny;, Amstar director of research, said sugar prices have risen rapidly in the last two weeks. He cited peak demand in the hot summer months, price manipulation by sugar producing countries, primarily by Philippines, and large purchases on foreign markets by the Soviet Union, Saudi Arabia and China.

Sugar commodity experts said the drought that severely cut the Russian wheat crop also did extensive damage to that nation's sugar beet crop.

Kolodny also said the frost damage that destroyed much of Brazil's coffee crop, prompting higher ground coffee prices, also may have affected 5 to 10% of that nation's sugar crop.

Tuesday night. Three firemen and a police officer were sent to the hospital for smoke inhalation treatment. A student photographer was treated for a back innury when he was knocked down by an explosion, and another person suffered minor injuries in the first explosion which started the blaze.

Manhattan resident John Toy, 65, said he remembered a fire in 1925 that destroyed businesses in practically the same area. Fire officials said that was the worst previous blaze they could remember.

The explosion in the Western Auto store on the south side of the 300 block of Poyntz Avenue occurred about 6:30 p.m. Flames quickly spread to a Sherwin Williams paint store next door, and then another explosion occurred in a storage area above the two stores.

The blast showered glass onto the street, nected wooden structures. Besides the hardware store and the paint store, a men's clothing store, a Western clothing store, a boutique, a sewing center, a television repair shop, a religious bookstore and a Modern Woodmen of the World lodge were destroyed.

Dense smoke hung over the area and caused smoke damage in other stores.

Some 200 firemen from several towns fought the fire for nearly five hours before it was put out early Wednesday.

Maheu Details Role In CIA Plot

Robert A. Maheu, a former aide to billionaire Howard Hughes, described in detail Wednesday his role in a Central Intelligence Agency scheme to poison Cuban Premier Fidel Castro but insisted that the order to carry out the plot never was given.

The plan, which was timed to coincide with the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion, was "always subject to a go signal, which to my knowledge never came," Maheu told reporters.

In other developments:

- Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., released a summary of documents compiled by Castro purporting to outline a total of 24 CIA-inspired assassination plots against Castro and other Cuban leaders. McGovern, who turned over the documents to the Senate intelligence committee.

- Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Senate intelligence committee, and vice chairman John Tower announced that the panel has decided "to extend an invitation" to former President Richard M. Nixon to testify on his administratitus's policy toward Chile.

Maheu met with reporters after completing his sworn testimony before the Senate committee.

The plot, in which Maheu acted as a liaison between the CIA and underworld figures John Rosselli and Sam Giancana, has been described previously in various news reports, but Maheu's account reported for the first time that Hughes was aware of the scheme.

Maheu was not able to shed any new light on where in the government authority to draw up plans to kill Castro had originated.

Richard M. Bissell, the former chief of clandestine services for the CIA, was quoted by the Los Angeles Times on Wednesday as saying he personally approved CIA cooperation with the Mafia in the assassination plan and that he believed then-CIA Director

Maheu said he was contacted sometime in 1960 by a CIA officer named James O'Connell,

"who asked me in connection with a planned invasion of Cuba if I would contact a Mr. John Rosselli in Los Angeles, asking if Mr. Rosselli would be inclined to help in a project for removing Mr.Castro from the scene."

Asked to be more specific about the phrase "removing Mr. Castro," Maheu replied, "My understanding was that when the go signal was received, if it was received. Mr. Castro would be killed." According to Maheu's account, he and Rosselli went to Miami where they met a man named Sam Gold "who subsequently turned out to be Mr. Giancana."

As described by Maheu, Rosselli and Giancana were to use contacts they had as a result of their gambling interests in pre-Castro Cuba to pass the poison "to someone who was in a position to be close enough to Castro so that it could be administered if need be."

Maheu, who was receiving a $500-a-month retainer fee from the CIA at the time, said he did not think that either Rosselli or Giancana were paid any money by the agency.

Maheu said he was never told why the order to carry out the plan was never given. However, he said that sometime after the April 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion, he was told by Col. Sheffield Edwards, then the CIA's chief of security, that "there came a time prior to the invasion that Mr. Castro and either his brother Raul or Mr. Che (Guevara) could have been administered the poison but the go signal had not been received.'

According to Maheu, his principal role was to make sure that Rosselli and Giancana did not back out of the plan.

At one point, Maheu said, Giancana was threatening to leave Miami for Las Vegas because of his concern that his girl friend, singer Phyllis McGuire, was involved with comedian Dan Rowan. In order to keep Giancana in Miami, Maheu said he arranged, and the CIA paid, for private detectives to place Rowan under sur-

Bank Robber Caught; Woman Hostage Okay

Farnam - A Wheaton, Mo., man sought in connection with the Tuesday armed robbery of the Farnam Bank was apprehended near Farnam Wednesday night, the Nebraska State Patrol reported.

George Wayne Knight, 43, and his female hostage, Mrs. Celeste Adkisson, 20, were found hiding in a corn field two miles west of Farnam at 8:45 p.m., according to the patrol.

Mrs. Adkisson a teller in the bank, was not harmed and was returned to her home at Farnam, a spokesman for the State Patrol at North Platte reported. The patrol said it appeared the pair had been in the corn field since shortly after the robbery.

Knight offered no resistance when a group of investigating officers flushed him out of the field, the patrol added. The robbery suspect was taken to the Lincoln County Jail at North Platte.

Authorities said Mrs. Adkisson was forced to drive the bandit, armed with a handgun, away from the bank in her car, which was found abandoned about one hour later south of Farnam. A second car was found at Maywood, a small community about 20 miles west of Farnam.

The sheriff said the second car was found parked at Maywood, and Mrs. Lewis was stopped for questioning as she came out of a Maywood cafe and was brought back to Farnam. She offered no resistance and said she was with Knight and the hostage after the robbery, officers said.

Farnam - A Wheaton, Mo., man sought in connection with the Tuesday armed robbery of the Farnam Bank was apprehended near Farnam Wednesday night, the Nebraska State Patrol reported.

George Wayne Knight, 43, and his female hostage, Mrs. Celeste Adkisson, 20, were found hiding in a corn field two miles west of Farnam at 8:45 p.m., according to the patrol.

Mrs. Adkisson a teller in the bank, was not harmed and was returned to her home at Farnam, a spokesman for the State Patrol at North Platte reported. The patrol said it appeared the pair had been in the corn field since shortly after the robbery.

Knight offered no resistance when a group of investigating officers flushed him out of the field, the patrol added. The robbery suspect was taken to the Lincoln County Jail at North Platte.

Greater World Reality

There being so very few absolutes in the world, it would be naive to believe that the problems of Europe have been solved through the Helsinki Conference. In fact, it is with some unease that the U.S. should look at the finalization of European berders established in the tattered aftermath of World War II.

Such a settlement gives a respectability to Soviet post-war land grabs that have no real credibility in fact. But one need not condone each and every thing with which one has to live.

We are not talking about the careless disregard of all principle or indifference to the cause of human freedom and national sovereignty. But there are and can continue to be vital elements of our own national life and government while the accord at Helsinki is signed.

What is represented at Helsinki is nothing more than what Europe has been in fact for the past quarter of a century. We have not managed to change the situation in that time and we have no reasonable expectation of changing it in the future.

The same thing, apparently, is happening with Cuba. The Organization of American States, including the United States, has voted this week to lift its economic and diplomatic embargo against Castro's Cuba.

Once again, the vote represents the recognition of a reality which we can do little about, even though we are not especially fond of it.

The point is that this nation has no magic by which it can make the rest of the world do as it thinks best. We may not like the systems by which many parts of the world are governed but it is folly to be in continual conflict with them as a result of

This is not a matter of two neighbors getting along, although there is some similarity between the two things. The two neighbors at odds with one another have only each other to harm. But nations at odds with one another put the lives and progress of millions and millions of people

Communism is not our cup of tea but it is a fact of our international life. Our success in changing it toward greater freedom will be found more in working with it when possible than in being at constant odds with it.

Helsinki may well represent the confirmation of some things we do not like but it also is an opportunity to begin to affect some changes and that, we believe, is worth the risks involved.

Can't Play Only Winners

Wouldn't it be a marvelous thing if you could get into a poker game in which you were allowed to play only your winning hands? If one could figure out the technicality of it and find a group of four to five players to agree to it, he would surely have a fine thing going for himself.

Something like that applies in the case of the business interests along 13th from J to L who want to be excluded from that street's beautification program. The program, they claim, will be of no benefit to them.

Very correctly, the City Council laid the claim aside, asserting that the time to determine individual benefits is when assessments are made for payment of the improvement. Then, if these businesses can be found to have received no benefit, they will be asked to pay nothing.

Our guess is that they will be found to have received some benefit, however. That's the way it is with most of the public services and programs we have today and there isn't any alternative way of doing things.

If the businessmen were right, they might also argue that they receive no benefit from the Fire Department, since they have never had to call upon this service. People who don't go to the swimming pools could deduct the cost of such facilities from their taxes.

Only those who used the libraries would pay for them. Only when you needed a policeman, or earned an unwanted contact with one, would you have to pay up for having this service on hand.

The fact is that if we all paid only for those things for which we could stipulate a direct economic benefit, few of us would be paying anything. Public services and even government itself would be nonexistent.

But we live as a community and we, therefore, must pay for things as a part of that community. When we are a part of a community, we do things in common, because that is the only practical way of getting them done.

And you have to consider your own benefit from this on an indirect as well as direct basis. The 13th Street businessmen have to figure that the improvement in question will make the area in which they operate more attractive to people, whether or not they can sit down at the moment and count an exact number of additional people walking into their establishments.

HELSINKI - I don't know what else the Helsinki summit will be remembered for in history but there is no doubt it serves as a brass monument to patient, careful Soviet diplomacy which, for 21 years, has been seeking an East-West accord formally acknowledging

East Europe's de facto frontiers.

Moreover it signalizes a personal triumph for Leonid I. Brezhnev. He continued the basic foreign policy gingerly begun by Stalin's successors. With unflamboyant persistence, he has now brought to a legal conclusion the process of gaining recognition for all Russia's World War II territorial conquests — as well as the

'What's Yours Is Negotiable'

To be sure, some communist activists are at present opposing Muscovite methods and proponents. They proclaim their support for democratic freedoms and party pluralism. Even Lenin can be cited as favoring this as a tactic - but Lenin was not notable for applying it.

All this doesn't mean the summit — if it signifies anything more than symbolism — heralds an ideological end to democracy and social democracy. So even if the Soviet dictatorship has become sclerotic and the so-called classless society is dominated by a new class of pampered bureaucrats, it nevertheless remains coherent and clearly knows where it is heading

The flabbiness of NATO is fated to get worse. China, which has been urging Western togetherness, has every reason to worry; Russia's allies in India and North Vietnam (which worry Peking) are getting respectively more antidemocratic and more strong.

The Russians are extending their broad-gauge railway system deep into Eastern Europe, a matter of some military importance and certainly a sign of confidence in the durability of Moscow's policy --to have and to hold.

Intentionally, prior to reading any news accounts, I obtained a copy of the State Supreme Court decision to suspend G. Bradford Cook's lawyer license for three years. I read the 28 pages carefully and critically, underlining and making marginal notations. After painstaking evaluation of the decision and other material, I decided that a "defense of G. Bradford Cook" should be offered by his chief public critic. (I must acknowledge at the outset that ignorance of the law is no excuse in Nebraska unless you are a bright, highly competent securities lawyer - or a Nebraska University Regent.)

In crisp, clean language the court proclaimed Cook guilty on only three of six counts. How many sinners have a better than 50% average of sinlessness? Certainly most lawyers do not.

Besides, all six counts dealt with an inconsequential — to lawyers — matter: lying. Lying is part of Americana. A few weeks ago, District Judge Kuns ruled Cook's lying wasn't so bad because a lawver can't be expected to tell the truth all the time. So why all the fuss?

Perhaps the hubbub could be justified if Cook had done something really serious such as advertising, neglecting to address a judge as "Your Honor" or failing (God forbid!) to pay his bar association dues. He only lied.

 $\Delta \Delta \Delta$

Even the court which gently, politely, respectfully and apologetically tapped his wrists, graciously swallowed Cook's implication that he couldn't be held personally responsible for lying to the Devil made him do it. Rather generously, the Court attributed his lying to "selfdelusion" and "a very human tendency founded in part on the frailty of memory".

Some cynic, lacking capacity to grasp the profound protectiveness among the lawyer brotherhood may find it difficult to accept the court's neat apologia. The cynic, after considering the court's high praise of Cook's intelligence may ungenerously conclude that the bright lawyer lied to save his hide (which was the effect of it) not because of any "frailty of memory?'.

Who can read minds and discern hearts? If Cook indicates that his lying sprang from a lofty, unselfish motive (only to save Stans' hide) who can challenge him? Why cheapen the tone of the refined discussion by dredging up the tawdry fact that Cook's perjury was traded for political help from Stans in procuring the SEC chairmanship?

 $\Delta \Delta \Delta \Delta$ Numerous indicators suggest that Cook is such a fine fellow, even the undertaker will mourn his passing — and that he did not really realize what he was doing. His lawyers say he was a "relatively young man" dealing with crafty older sinners. Who would expect a mere youth of 38 albeit a bright lawyer and SEC chairman — to know the significance of lying?

Additionally, many fine "persons of good repute" who see nothing much wrong with perjury, wrote glowing endorsements and buttressed the notion that poor Cook was a victim of circumstances.

A cynic might argue maliciously that in the context of political and legal events

Proxmire Committee (Count V). The cascading in roaring torrents upon the nation at the time Cook was lying (Watergate was bursting out all over) it is unbelieveable that he failed to recognize the profound import of his actions, unless he was in a trance or recently returned from the moon after several years. But let us be generous like the court for "to err is human . . ." In Cook's favor, under a winked-eye in> terpretation, is the fact that he said he was sorry for lying to the federal grand jury when the U.S. attorney told him they had the goods on him, cold. Mind you, as soon as he was caught with the smoking gun in his hand, Cook courageously said in manly fashion with a great display of integrity and patriotism: "You got me; I'll help you get everybody else". And he resigned as SEC chairman before anybody even told him to. These things show character of some kind or other.

☆ ☆ ☆ An anti-lawyer cynic might view his long, convoluted repudiation of his perjury admissions as a smooth, slippery, polished, well-rehearsed string of clever lawyer-lies to cover lies. Not so. Listen. When you are charged with lying and finally decide to tell the WHOLE truth about how you DIDN'T tell the whole truth when you ADMITTED under oath that you LIED, you can sound as if you're not telling the truth. Especially if you bear the stamp: "U.S. Government Certified Liar". Enough has been presented to show that Cook is a fine fellow with integrity to burn. It is as unfair to condemn this honest man for his few perjuries and lies as it is to brand an honest man a thief merely for stealing a few times.

I agree with the court that premeditated perjury "is most serious" - but not really inconsistent with good standing in the Nebraska Bar Association. I further agree with the court that Cook is not likely to repeat THIS offense; i.e., tamper with an SEC complaint against Robert Vesco, wheel and deal to obtain the SEC chairmanship, then commit perjury during a Watergate epidemic of national political scandal and corruption - just as Humpty Dumpty will not fall and shatter a second time, nor the murderer of John Jones twice murder John Jones.

The court's leniency at first drew my ire. I mistakenly attributed their kindness to Cook's political, social and family status. I even thought in terms of Cook And The Seven Judicial Dwarfs. No more. Upon reflection, I realize the court is ushering in a merciful new dispensation. It is mere happenstance that a member of a prominent, powerful family is the first beneficiary.

The court now certainly will make amends for past harsh treatment of garden-variety lawyers who have been disbarred permanently. The new Nebraska Supreme Court Rule: Since perjury is not grounds for disbarment, nothing is. Hallelujah! The court with tearful apology, will reinstate all the disbarred and provide proper recompense for the gross injustice dealt them during a judicially less enlightened time.

This done, the public may cease viewing the law as a spiderweb which catches the small insects while letting the large ones fly through. All lawyeroffenders will be smitten with the same

Form Of Blackmail, Extortion

Lincoln, Neb. What gives with The Lincoln Star? The July 28 papercarried an excellent article concerning the personal rights of Nebraska citizens, blackmail and extortion by the federal government, federal meddling in state and citizen affairs, and the freedom of choice and/or expression by citizens.

But where did people find such a relevant and interesting article that so concerned them? On the last page of the paper, preceding the classifieds and entitled: "Riders Rev Up For Helmet Fight In Court" - a good title that envisions black leather jackets, hobnail boots and swinging chains.

It is this type of shoddy journalism and third-rate coverage that keeps stereotyping motorcycle riders and keeps concerned citizens in the dark when their personal rights are violated.

The helmet law is but one of many examples of federal blackmail, extortion and federal meddling in citizen affairs. This is the real issue at stake, not just the "right to wear" law: Yet this paper refuses to face the issue or point out the facts in an unbiased way.

Why is such an article of paramount importance to every resident of Nebraska found on the last page of the paper, preempted off the front page by a 96-year-old lady who can still clap? This interesting and relevant article didn't even rate honorable mention in the paper's table of contents.

Greater World Reality

There being so very few absolutes in the world, it would be naive to believe that the problems of Europe have been solved through the Helsinki Conference. In fact, it is with some unease that the U.S. should look at the finalization of European borders established in the tattered aftermath of World War II.

Such a settlement gives a respectability to Soviet post-war land grabs that have no real credibility in fact. But one need not condone each and every thing with which one has to live.

We are not talking about the careless disregard of all principle or indifference to the cause of human freedom and national sovereignty. But there are and can continue to be vital elements of our own national life and government while the accord at Helsinki is signed.

What is represented at Helsinki is nothing more than what Europe has been in fact for the past quarter of a century. We have not managed to change the situation in that time and we have no reasonable expectation of changing it in the future.

The same thing, apparently, is happening with Cuba. The Organization of American States, including the United States, has voted this week to lift its economic and diplomatic embargo against Castro's Cuba.

Once again, the vote represents the recognition of a reality which we can do little about, even though we are not especially fond of it.

The point is that this nation has no magic by which it can make the rest of the world do as it thinks best. We may not like the systems by which many parts of the world are governed but it is folly to be in continual conflict with them as a result of

This is not a matter of two neighbors getting along, although there is some similarity between the two things. The two neighbors at odds with one another have only each other to harm. But nations at odds with one another put the lives and progress of millions and millions of people on the line.

Communism is not our cup of tea but it is a fact of our international life. Our success in changing it toward greater freedom will be found more in working with it when possible than in being at constant odds with it.

Helsinki may well represent the confirmation of some things we do not like but it also is an opportunity to begin to affect some changes and that, we believe, is worth the risks involved.

Can't Play Only Winners

Wouldn't it be a marvelous thing if you could get into a poker game in which you were allowed to play only your winning hands? If one could figure out the technicality of it and find a group of four to five players to agree to it, he would surely have a fine thing going for himself.

Something like that applies in the case of the business interests along 13th from J to L who want to be excluded from that street's beautification program. The program, they claim, will be of no benefit to them.

Very correctly, the City Council laid the claim aside, asserting that the time to determine individual benefits is when assessments are made for payment of the improvement. Then, if these businesses can be found to have received no benefit, they will be asked to pay nothing.

Our guess is that they will be found to have received some benefit, however. That's the way it is with most of the public services and programs we have today and there isn't any alternative way of doing

If the businessmen were right, they might also argue that they receive no benefit from the Fire Department, since they have never had to call upon this service. People who don't go to the swimming pools could deduct the cost of such facilities from their taxes.

Only those who used the libraries would pay for them. Only when you needed a policeman, or earned an unwanted contact with one, would you have to pay up for having this service on hand.

The fact is that if we all paid only for those things for which we could stipulate a direct economic benefit, few of us would be paying anything. Public services and even government itself would be non-

But we live as a community and we, therefore, must pay for things as a part of that community. When we are a part of a community, we do things in common, because that is the only practical way of getting them done.

And you have to consider your own benefit from this on an indirect as well as direct basis. The 13th Street businessmen have to figure that the improvement in question will make the area in which they operate more attractive to people, whether or not they can sit down at the moment and count an exact number of additional people walking into their establishments.

Army's LSD War Games

WASHINGTON - During a mock battle in the late 1950s, the Army sent a couple of dozen assault troops under the influence of LSD into the fray and filmed the chaotic results. It was comic opera, with troops dressed in battle gear and behaving like an army of Gomer

The 15-minute film showed how the troops reacted under battle-simulated conditions. Reported Dr. John Buckman, a psychiatry professor at the University of Virginia medical school: "The soldiers showed lack of motivation, lack of ability to attend to detail." In one sequence, the drugged soldiers were supposed to climb a cement wall. "They were totally disinterested in the task. Quite clumsy," recalled Dr. Buckman. One soldier in the film lost a button to the fly of his pants. He stopped in the middle of the mock battle and scoured the ground for the button. "That soldier couldn't continue the war until he found his button," said the psychiatrist.

The soldiers in the film also were ordered to march in formation, alternating their feet at each count. "They walked," according to Buckman, "like Gomer Pyle. Drawing a weird comparison, he concluded: "The results were similar to when a spider was fed LSD. His web was much more chaotic than normal." Footnote: The Army's LSD experiments were an outgrowth of the Korean War, an attempt to learn more about the brainwashing used on POW's in Korea. The accounts of the POWs were remarkably similar to the experiences of troops under LSD, according to doctors who conducted the experiments. Governments on both sides of the Iron Curtain became interested in chemical means of altering human behavior. Several eminent psychiatrists have said LSD could be used as an effective weapon of war. The drug could be compressed in aerosol fontainers and dropped from planes. Some psychiatrists suggested it would produce insanity on a large scale.

If the drug could be slipped into the food or drink of top military planners, it could lead to chaotic decisions. But most of the psychiatrists whom we interviewed were appalled at the thought of using LSD as a weapon. For them, it is a clinical tool for treating alcoholism, heroin addiction and other problems. Its military use "would be like turning a scalpel into a sword,"

HELSINKI - I don't know what else the Helsinki summit will be remembered for in history but there is no doubt it serves as a brass monument to patient, careful Soviet diplomacy which, for 21 years, has been seeking an East-West accord formally acknowledging

East Europe's de facto frontiers.

Moreover it signalizes a personal triumph for Leonid I. Brezhnev. He continued the basic foreign policy gingerly begun by Stalin's successors. With unflamboyant persistence, he has now brought to a legal conclusion the process of gaining recognition for all Russia's World War II territorial conquests - as well as the ideological ascendence Moscow has since reaffirmed in that area.

West adamantly to his own timetable, managed to do this in the immediate wake of the Soviet-American space link-up. That event dramatically reminded the world there are only two genuine superpowers. This in turn exacerbates suspicions all the way from Paris to Peking that these superpowers are imposing their own patterns, thereby weakening the voluntary support on which Washington relies more than Moscow.

It is fitting that leaders from 35 nations should meet in Helsinki. Finland's political position has given its name to a condition conceivably slated to apply elsewhere in Europe which might henceforth focus on a revised version of Marx's 1848 Communist Manifesto, beginning the new edition: "A spectre is haunting Europe - the spectre of Finlandization." While Finlandization frightens West Europeans because it implies helpless strategic dependence on Moscow, even though acknowledging considerable ideological independence and a largely pluralistic society, it heartens East Europeans. They dream of the day when they will be permitted as much freedom as the doughty Finns have been allowed in exchange for their

'What's Yours Is Negotiable'

But the rest of East Europe is unlikely to gain much more liberty as a consequence of the Helsinki summit. In 1984 the Russians are not going to be less tough about what they consider their private business than they were in Hungary (1956) or Czechoslovakia (1968). Nor is the deal to be ratified here going to alter Soviet determination.

As the late Charles E. Bohlen discerned years ago, Moscow's approach to these matters, vis-avis the West, is: "What's ours is ours; what's yours is negotiable." So while the West tacitly accepts everything in Europe East of the Elbe as permanently communist, the same West looks on like a paralyzed chicken while an avowedly pro-Soviet minority in NATO Portugal attempts to establish a Marxist dictatorship.

Solzhenytsin is kept out of the White House and Ford comes to Helsinki - while Brezhnev's co-belligerents infiltrate the Portuguese government, British trade unions, French media, Greek politics, Italian regional administration, and Irish revisionism.

To be sure, some communist activists are at present opposing Muscovite methods and proponents. They proclaim their support for democratic freedoms and party pluralism. Even Lenin can be cited as favoring this as a tactic - but Lenin was not notable for applying it.

All this doesn't mean the summit - if it signifies anything more than symbolism - heralds an ideological end to democracy and social democracy. But right now too many democratic countries are run by a collection of unimaginative mediocrities who focus more on tomorrow's elections than the day after our own. tomorrow's problems.

So even if the Soviet dictatorship has become sclerotic and the so-called classless society is dominated by a new class of pampered bureaucrats, it nevertheless remains coherent and clearly knows where it is heading.

The flabbiness of NATO is fated to get worse. China, which has been urging Western togetherness, has every reason to worry; Russia's allies in India and North Vietnam (which worry Peking) are getting respectively more antidemocratic and more strong.

The Russians are extending their broad-gauge railway system deep into Eastern Europe, a matter of some military importance and certainly a sign of confidence in the durability of Moscow's policy to have and to hold.

Nor are restrictions on Soviet emigration or dissidence relaxing further. Helsinki and the diplomatic trend it punctuates won't change Moscow's society as much as it may change

Intentionally, prior to reading any news accounts, I obtained a copy of the State Supreme Court decision to suspend G. Bradford Cook's lawyer license for three years. Woodworker Running Out Of Walnut

By DEAN TERRILL Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice - If the Republicans stay in nower much longer, Ernest Sonderegger may have to scrounge himself a new log. Since he presented President Ford one of his GOP-type gavels last month, the 90-year-old retired nurseryman has only two or three hunks of walnut left. He'd be hard put to find any more so prestigious. Ernie has been carving away since "right after World War I" on a native log he found while bullhead fishing on Cub Creek. It would literally take an act of Congress to get a replacement from the same site now.

What was then "Dan Freeman's old place" has long since been set aside as Homestead National Monument, denoting the nation's first homestead. Ernie merely asked one of Freeman's sons permission to remove the tree.

3-Foot Lengths

"I sawed it into three-foot lengths and have been making things from it ever since," said the hobbyist. "I turned out lamps, tables, chairs and model ships before I ever started on the gavels."

Souvenir gavels from the old tree also went to "Nixon, Agnew, Rockefeller, Curtis, Hruska, Denney and former Gov. Tiemann — but no Democrats." The oldster proudly noted that he has voted the Republican ticket since 1905.

Though slowed by three light strokes, he still mans the lathe and other tools in his basement shop. His eyes are now too dim for what once was a hobby within a hobby: building miniature ships.

A woodworker since he was a teenager, the Beatrice native also has specialized in antique furniture reproductions. His home fairly brims with samples

The nursery he operated was started by his father, Carl, in 1886. Ernest's son is Paul Sonderegger of Lincoln, a partner in the engineering form of Hoskins-Western-Sonderegger, Inc.

Than Disturbed More Land Reclaimed

There is a growing concern for land reclamation throughout Nebraska, if a survey of current mining operations is any measure.

For the first time in half a century, more reclaimed acres have been reported in the state for the past year than the number of acres disturbed by active mining operations. According to a report issued by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Conservation and Survey Division, 646 mining operations in 1974 disturbed 1,253 acres, whereas 1,344 acres were reclaimed last year (including 911 acres reclaimed in inactive or abandoned

In the case of the Cornhusker State's fields, what farmers need now is rain

Dr. Don Hanway, chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's agronomy department, explains that the two-week period when corn is pollinating and grain sorghum is shooting heads is critical.

· Depending on the plant variety, that time is now. If it is too hot or too dry, the pollen dies and even tall green corn produces very little grain.

"Once you have seed set you can stand quite a bit of dry weather stress, but the dryland crop just won't make it without rain soon," Hanway said.

"The situation in western Iowa and all of Nebraska is quite highly variable. If we had not had the rains and cooler weather we got 10 days ago we would be in real serious trouble," he said. Some spots in the state didn't areas may have lost their entire crop for 1975, crop experts believe. Some other areas had heavy rain and are in fine shape, and still other areas had lesser amounts of rain that provided a reprieve. More rain is needed everywhere, observers say.

"The problem is that we have next to nothing in reserve. We must have continued rains if we are to have any crop on dryland. I just can't be as optimistic as the folks in Washington who are predicting a bumper crop this fall. Too much of our grain is in the touch-and-go state now," Hanway said.

Hanway noted that even a little rain helps because it tends to increase humidity and clouds and drop temperatures.

"It is this period of hot sunny cloudless days that is killing the crop," he said.

"Overall, I would have to say we are in better shape than we were a year ago in crop possibilities. If we get continued rain in August and September we should have a pretty good general crop, but in some areas the crop is already gone," he

N. Platte Man's Animal Science Work Honored

Fort Collins, Colo. (AP) - A North Platte man was honored here Tuesday night for his work in animal science.

Dr. Donald C. Clanton, head of the University of Nebraska's beef cattle research program since 1966, was named as the recipient of the national "American Society of Animal Science Award in Animal Management."

A $1,000 stipend from Merck and Co., Inc., Rahway, N.J., accompanied the award.

The award recognizes outstanding work in the stimulation of research into biological or production management.

Clanton was one of 11 scientists receiving national recognition during the 67th annual meeting of the American Society of Animal Sciences.

Mayor Still Wants Advice On Police Review Board

Star Staff Writer

Mayor Helen Boosahs said Wednesday she wants the Human Rights Commission to continue studying the police review board issue even though it looks like the City Council is going to bypass the commission on that matter.

The mayor said she was disappointed in the council's decision to kill the civilian police review board proposal next week. The ordinance proposed by Councilman John Robinson calls for the creation of a nine-member board.

The council's action would have the effect of ignoring the work being done by the Human Rights Commission, which the council charged with making a recommendation.

Mrs. Boosalis said she still wants a recommendation from the commission, even if the majority of the council does not.

"Depending on what they come up with, I hope to propose my own procedure," she said. The mayor said the new system won't be patterned after the procedure set up by her predecessor, Sam Schwartzkopf.

In 1972 Schwartzkopf created by executive order a three-man police board of examiners. The mayor had the option of referring any complaints against the police to that board. The board then made a recommendation back to the mayor. Apparently, the board has met three times since it was formed.

Robinson charged that the mayor's procedure discouraged people from filing complaints against the police. He said the board should be accountable to the City Council since the mayor could abolish the other procedure at

A member of the Human Rights Commission called the council's decision to ignore the advisory group "very unfair."

'Personally, I am disturbed by it," said Carol Reilly, who has been reviewing the proposals since June. The commission had planned to make a recommendation by Sept. 1.

Earl Barnawell, a member of Justice, Inc., said the council's action indicates that the council "has something to fear."

"We've got an unusually good police department," he said, "but that doesn't mean there's not room for improvement."

Barnawell said a civilian review board would give people an avenue to air their complaints openly. He thinks that a civilian board's review of most allegations would end up reflecting credit on the department.

Although Councilmen Dick Baker and Max Denney contended most Lincolnites don't want such a review board, Barnawell argued, "There are a number of other citizens in favor of it." The council is expected to act on Robinson's proposal Monday.

Exon Predicts Deal On Grain Snatu By BOB GUENTHER Star Staff Writer

A meeting with union officials has given Gov. J. James Exon reason to be optimistic that longshoremen's refusal to load American wheat bound for Russia can be worked out.

Exon, who met with AFL-CIO President George Meaney and International Longshoremen Union President Thomas Gleason in Chicago, said he felt the union has shifted its positions.

Exon said the union objections could be worked out in upcoming negotiations with government and grain cartel officials about which ships would carry the grain.

American Shine The union, he said, wants half of the ships to be American due to high unemployment among dockworkers. Exon called that demand a "not totally unrealistic position."

Other union concerns are the impact of the wheat sale on prices paid by American consumers, and that the Soviets might be getting the hest of the deal. Until those concerns are satisfied, the union will not load the grain, Meaney has said.

Cablevision Ready To Air Local Talent

Lincoln residents who think they have more talent than what's displayed on entertainment programs or late night talk shows now can show it on cable television.

Richard Bates, program director for .Cablevision, Lincoln's cable television company, said his firm now has the equipment to make a public-access channel available.

The company will offer studio and air time 24 hours a day for persons wanting to televise a program, Bates said.

Groups putting on the programs, which will be aired on channel 9, determine their show's content. Bates said, however, that the company's review board will examine any program that might be considered obscene or libelous.

Use of the channel for political messages during an election or for commercial messages is banned by the Federal Communications Commission.

Bill's Passage Would Increase Sewage Funds

Nebraska stands to receive $38.5 million for sewage treatment under a bill passed by the Senate and presently waiting House action.

The bill makes population and need the basis for allocation to states of $9 billion previously impounded sewage treatment

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D.-Ga., said ten states would have received 64% of the money if the change had not been made. Nebraska's allotment is a $13.7 million increase over the state's share under the present allocation formula. But the bill runs increasing risks of a veto because of an amendment providing $5.2 billion for public service jobs, according to the amendment's opponents.

3 Astronauts Leave Hospital; Health Is Okay

Honolulu (UPI) — The three Apollo astronauts were discharged from Tripler Hospital Wednesday with a clean bill of health after undergoing treatment for a mysterious gas that seeped into their space capsule during re-entry last Thursday.

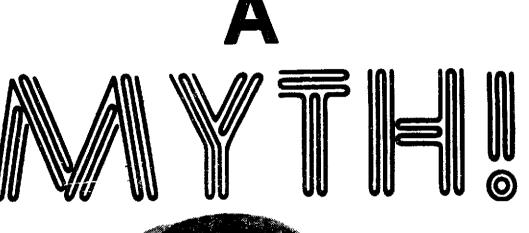

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Donald "Deke" Slayton and Vance Brand left by helicopter for Kanehoe Marine Air Station on Oahu where they will spend a 10-day beach house convalescence with their families, scheduled to arrive here

Wednesday night from Houston. Respiratory problems caused by breathing the toxic fumes were cleared up by the five-day hospital treatment, said Larry King, spokesman for the National Space and Aeronautics Administration.

456,600 Recruited

Washington (AP) - The armed services recruited 456,800 men and women last fiscal year, the Pentagon reported.

DISCOVERED

The experience was absolutely shocking! For many years I was made to believe that one had to travel out of our fine city to really get a good buy on furniture. So away I went, chasing around the country side, driving miles to find a good buy on that "Just Right" chair for the family room. We drove so much, that coming home chairless we ran out of gas at 48th and "R". I went into a store to use the phone . . . and there it was, in the window, the chair I really wanted. And the price . . . no high price here, the price was truly competitive with the so called low overhead country sellers. While waiting for my husband to show up with a can of petrol, I strolled thru the store, looking at all kinds of unsually fine, decorative furniture ... and the myth exploded. It was here ... right in the heart of Lincoln at Armstrongs where the wise furniture shopper will find the very best values. Save a bundle on gas too.

Using Correct Equipment Important To Home Canner may not be perfectly round or hard-to-find canning tin flats

As the cry for canning lids continues the cry also has gone out for other means of preserving the fruits of this year's widespread garden efforts

This year 19 million Americans are expected to preserve foods at home to cope with the ever-rising cost of living But because of the recurring canning lid shortage, many are looking to improvised supplies for canning or to other means for preserving the food and still keep cost at a minimum

Using the right equipment is an important factor in successful home canning

According to food specialists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln nothing will be gained from canning if the food spoils or if members of a family become ill from food poisoning

For this reason, experts strongly recommend against use of recycled hds or peanut butter pickle mayonnaise or any other recycled jars

Althought some of these jars may be used for freezing jars manufactured especially for home canning must be used for home-canned products, according to Ethel Diedrichsen extension food specialist at

If freezing space is available, Mrs Wyant recommends freezing food instead of canning Freezing containers — one of the costliest items in freezing - can be improvised by the use of milk cartons, shortening cans, empty peanut butter jars and potato chip tubes

Unlike canning lids, commercial freezing containers can be reused year after year if they are given proper care

Mrs Wyant said she has been experimenting with drying garden products and has had "fairly good results

She said this is a very old method of preserving food but works well for such items as apricots, apples, corn, cabbage, carrots and cherries.

> If freezing space is available Mrs. Wyant recommends freezing food instead of canning. Freezing containers - one of the costliest items in freezing - can be improvised by the use of milk cartons, shortening cans, empty peanut butter jars and potato chip tubes.

Unlike canning lids, commercial freezing containers can be reused year after year if they are given proper care.

Mrs. Wyant said she has been experimenting with drying garden products and has had "fairly good results."

She said this is a very old method of preserving food but works well for such items as apricots, apples, corn, cabbage, carrots and cherries.

To provide information on drying, Mrs. Wyant has scheduled two classes at the County Extension Office Aug. 13 on drying of garden fruits and vegetables

Well, four months ago his mother came home early and caught us going all the way. She didn't say anything, but the next day Doug told me he'd promised his mother that he'd break up with me. (She doesn't know it, but we've been going all the way for a year and a haif.)

We stayed apart for two months, then we started seeing each other on the sneak.

Doug's mother was driving by a hamburger shop yesterday and saw Doug and me coming out, so she phoned my mother and told her she didn't approve of Doug's seeing me. (She didn't say why.) My mom said she approved and that it was up to me. (My mom doesn't know I've gone all the

Our parents are retired on modest pensions. To save them money, my husband does their plumbing and electrical-repair work. He's no amateur. He makes his living that way. Sometimes he spends two or more days on a repair job for them and asks nothing in return. He even supplies the parts.

My kick is that my parents have called other plumbers and electricians who have charged them outrageous prices (one bill was $75 and the other, $160 for jobs that were so poor my husband had to straighten them out afterward.)

It seems to me that if my folks are going to pay for a job, they could at least call my husband and give him the business.

Should we tell them that from now on they should hire people to do their jobs for them? Or should we apply for guardianship of these old fools?

Tim has equal respect for his brother. In practice as well as meets, one is the other's main competitor.

"We were afraid at first," Tom admitted, "that we'd get in a corner and try to knock each other out for the lead but it's not that way at all. We'd rather help each other.'

To Defend Title At least part of that feeling of camaraderie may stem from the skating competition itself. They will be competing as teammates in three events this week. And Wednesday morning they won their heat and a chance to defend their title in the five-mile, two-man relay.

They work well together. Even while being interviewed, one brother would often finish a thought the other introduced.

Tim was 7 and Tom was 9 when they competed in their first national meet, only four months after they attached wheels to their feet for the first

By MARK GORDON Star Sports Writer Injuries have plagued Ann Schultheis in her jockey career. But that doesn't mean she isn't thankful for having "luck."

"Somebody up there is watching me. That's the only way I can describe it," said the 23-year-old rider recently at the State Fairgrounds. "I've been real lucky so far when I've been hurt. Those spills could have been a lot worse."

While riding a horse named Sash N Dash on the last day of this spring's Fonner Park meet at Grand Island, the 4-year-old filly broke both her front legs sending Schultheis to the

She needed eight stitches in her face, suffered a concussion and was generally "pretty well bruised up.

"My face was all beat up and I was a real mess. Still, I was real lucky. Things could have been a lot worse," she added.

Then, less than one month ago, she was riding Cheri's Abhi at Park Jefferson in Jefferson, S.D. when the horse dropped dead of an apparent heart attack. She was unconscious for a few minutes, but soon

"They told me I shouldn't ride that weekend, but I did anyway," she explained. "The longer you wait, the harder it is to come back. I wasn't going to let those doctors tell me what to

"I've really been fortunate so far. I was out a month after the injury at Grand Island," she said.

That cost her a chance to ride at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha, so she made her riding cemeback at Park Jefferson.

"I would have loved to start riding again in Omaha, but I thought I'd better start at PJ to get back into shape," she explained. "Right now, I'm in fifth place with 13 winners at PJ. I'm riding for trainer Andy McKay.

Different' Game Awaiting Pelan

By CHUCK SINCLAIR

Prep Sports Writer If all-stater Ron Pelan hadn't graduated from East Butler High School last spring, be would have played his first 11man football game under usual conditions since the Brainardbased school is switching from eight-man this season.

Pelan's indoctrination to the 11-man game is bound to come a little tougher than usual now as he'll lock horns with the biggest and best prep football players in the state of Nebraska in the Aug. 9 Shrine Bowl.

Pelan looks to the Shrine Bowl as a proving grounds — for those who doubt he can play with the "big boys", and for himself.

"What I'm really waiting for is just to play in the Shrine Bowl and see exactly how I stack up against the rest of these guys, said Pelan, who is expected to anchor the North punt and kickoff return teams.

"People around home are all saying they don't think I can play with these guys, or even in a small college school somewhere," Pelan said. "And that's what I want to find out."

The game may be Pelan's first and last 11-man contest, pending the outcome.

"I think if I really put on a show, I'd really like to give college ball a try somewhere." he said. "But strictly on a small school level."

The smaller Nebraska colleges seem to be interested in Pelan as he's talked with both the Kearney State coaching staff and Ray Best of Coane, the host school to the North Shrine camp. Pelan is intent about having a

Injury-Plagued Schultheis 'Lucky'

By MARK GORDON Star Sports Writer Injuries have plagued Ann Schultheis in her jockey career. But that doesn't mean she isn't thankful for having "luck."

"Somebody up there is watching me. That's the only way I can describe it," said the 23-year-old rider recently at the State Fairgrounds. "I've been real lucky so far when I've been hurt. Those spills could have been a lot worse."

While riding a horse named Sash N Dash on the last day of this spring's Fonner Park meet at Grand Island, the 4-year-old filly broke both her front legs sending Schultheis to the

He scored with Oren Hamilton's Alyciday ($27.80) in the first and on Leslie Horn's Horns Lady ($12.00) in the second. The 6-6 combination returned $229.40.

Greer, who rode both halves of the double twice this year at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha, said he has performed that feat perhaps "10 or 15 times" in his career. Since this is Greer's first season in Lincoln, it was also the first time he won both ends of the double at the State Fairgrounds.

Williams Wins

Apprentice jockey Rob Williams tallied his first career victory when he rode Keith Riecken's Lorna B. to a narrow victory in the eighth race Wednesday at the State Fairgrounds.

"I think that was about 20 rides for me," Williams said, "It sure feels a lot different to win one. I was just hoping it would come this week."

Williams began his riding career for trainer Harry Trotsek at Arlington Park near Chicago. The 17-year-old rider is the son of Dean Williams, Nebraska correspondent for the Daily Racing Form.

All-Stars Require Miracle

The college All-Stars are being asked to do what the Minnesota Vikings couldn't. Namely, beat the Super Bowl Champion Pittsburgh Steelers in Chicago Friday. The All-Stars will be led by Steve Bartkowski, first draft pick by the Atlanta Falcons The game will not be televised in the Chicago area because there was not a sell-out 72 hours prior to game time

Joe Namath, his fortune secure thanks to the likes of cologne, pantyhose and popcorn, "settled" for a two-year contract with the New York Jets estimated at $850,000, the richest in pro football David Jaynes, newly acquired quarterback for the Atlanta

Falcons, was given a clean bill of health by the Falcons. Jaynes was held out of practice to get his arm checked, but doctors say his arm is fine Jaynes was having trouble throwing. The New York Jets said that Lou Piccone, who led the NFL

in kickoff return yardage last season, has been placed on waivers at his own request Piccone was involved in a contract dispute The Detroit Lions acquired veteran center Jon Morris from the New England Patriots in exchange for an undisclosed draft The St Louis Cardinals obtained defensive end Greg Wojcki

from the Chicago Bears in exchange for first year center Wes OTHER SPORTS

Major league baseball's franchise committee met with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in an effort to resolve the Oakland-San Francisco situation, but no announcement or comment was made following the meeting

Tony Trabert was named captain of the US Davis Cup team and said he hoped to lure Jimmy Connors to the team Connors' manager Bill Riordan was upset with the choice and said Trabert was the only choice Connors couldn't agree with

Right after Trabert's appointment, Vitas Gerulaltis, one of Connors' best friends, said he would be glad to play for Trabert on the U.S. team Gerulaitis is also managed by Riordan. Paul Snyder, owner of the NBA Buffalo Braves, announced the appointment of Frank Cooney to succeed him as Braves Most of the John F. Kennedy College Patriettes women's

became the undisputed champs of the Tri-County Little League Tuesday night with a 14-12 baseball victory over Crete The triumph capped a perfect

16-0 season for coach Bob Hansen's club The 16-team league was divided into two eight-team divisions for regular season play After capturing all 14 divisional games, Cheney topped Firth and Crete in playoff action to complete its perfect record sweep.

Colts' Orduna Clears Waivers

Towson, Md (UPI) - Former Nebraska running back Joe Orduna was released by the Baltimore Colts Wednesday after no national football league team claimed him for the waiver price Orduna is now a free agent single to lead Misty's win, while and can bargain with any team The San Francisco 49ers no 2 Mary Razor's solo home run and draft choice in 1971, Orduna played on Colt specialty teams last year. He also played with the New York Giants, who claimed him on waivers in 1972 Orduna led national champion Nebraska in 1970, rushing 884 yards and scoring 14 touchdowns

All-Stars Require Miracle

FOOTBALL

The college All-Stars are being asked to do what the Minnesota Vikings couldn't. Namely, beat the Super Bowl Champion Pittsburgh Steelers in Chicago Friday. The All-Stars will be led by Steve Bartkowski, first draft pick by the Atlanta Falcons. The game will not be televised in the Chicago area because there was not a sell-out 72 hours prior to game time.

Joe Namath, his fortune secure thanks to the likes of cologne, pantyhose and popcorn, "settled" for a two-year contract with the New York Jets estimated at $850,000, the richest in pro football.

David Jaynes, newly acquired quarterback for the Atlanta Falcons, was given a clean bill of health by the Falcons. Jaynes was held out of practice to get his arm checked, but doctors say his arm is fine. Jaynes was having trouble throwing. The New York Jets said that Lou Piccone, who led the NFL

in kickoff return yardage last season, has been placed on waivers at his own request. Piccone was involved in a contract dispute

The Detroit Lions acquired veteran center Jon Morris from the New England Patriots in exchange for an undisclosed draft

The St. Louis Cardinals obtained defensive end Greg Wojcki from the Chicago Bears in exchange for first year center Wes

OTHER SPORTS

Major league baseball's franchise committee met with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in an effort to resolve the Oakland-San Francisco situation, but no announcement or comment was made following the meeting.

Tony Trabert was named captain of the U.S. Davis Cup team and said he hoped to lure Jimmy Connors to the team. Connors' manager Bill Riordan was upset with the choice and said Trabert was the only choice Connors couldn't agree with.

Right after Trabert's appointment, Vitas Gerulaitis, one of Connors' best friends, said he would be glad to play for Trabert on the U.S. team. Gerulaitis is also managed by Riordan. Paul Snyder, owner of the NBA Buffalo Braves, announced the appointment of Frank Cooney to succeed him as Braves Most of the John F. Kennedy College Patriettes women's

Cheney Wins Baseball Title

Cheney - The Cheney Cubs became the undisputed champs of the Tri-County Little League Tuesday night with a 14-12 baseball victory over Crete.

The triumph capped a perfect 16-0 season for coach Bob Hansen's club.

The 16-team league was divided into two eight-team divisions for regular season play. After capturing all 14 divisional games, Cheney topped Firth and Crete in playoff action to complete its perfect record sweep.

Colts' Orduna Clears Waivers

Towson, Md. (UPI) - Former Nebraska running back Joe Orduna was released by the Baltimore Colts Wednesday after no national football league team claimed him for the waiver price. Orduna is now a free agent and can bargain with any team.

The San Francisco 49ers no. 2 draft choice in 1971, Orduna played on Colt specialty teams last year. He also played with the New York Giants, who claimed him on waivers in 1972.

Orduna led national champion Nebraska in 1970, rushing 884 yards and scoring 14

First National Bank Favored

Even if Judds Brothers stayed ting Thursday, at Duncan Field in Lincoln for area Junior Legion baseball tournament competition, Willie Weisbrook figures his First National Bank team would be co-favorites.

"We finished a game behind Judds in the standings and split with them during the regular season, so I think we'd be cofavored," Weisbrook says with regard to the Area 4 tournament starting Thursday at Sherman

First National, which finished 9-3 in the Eastern division of the Cornhusker Legion Baseball League and stands 14-8 overall, scored a 6-3 win over Judds during the regular season.

Weisbrook's squad, composed of Lincoln Southeast athletes, dropped a 1-0 verdict to Judds in a 5-inning rain-shortened regular season game.

Cornhusker League champion Judds, representing Northeast, competes in the Area 6 qualifying tournament, also star-

First National then plays East Town and Country at 8 p.m. with First National's Mark Harrison scheduled to go against John Bishop on the mound.

Competition in the double elimination tournament will continue Friday, Saturday and Sunday and, if necessary, on Mon-

"The first two nights should be good, close games," Weisbrook predicted. "The teams playing up to capability will win because we're all evenly matched."

First National has a combined 5.2 record against the other three teams in the tournament. Weisbrook's club is 2-0 against first-round opponent Town and Weisbrook has extreme confidence in starting pitcher Harrison. He's 6-1 with an ERA close to 2.00. Harrison led Southeast to the state Class A baseball finals last spring. First National relies on third baseman Mike Patt, shortstop Mark Haas and rightfielder Brian Dahlberg for most of its hitting strength.

Weisbrook hopes to get more pitching consistency during the tournament. His second game starter probably will be Haas with Greg Michaelson and Bill Kane available for mound duty down the stretch.

First Shore Lunch

I was 13 when my father, grandfather and an older brother finally let me go with them on their annual fishing trip to Canada

I hated eating fish back then but loved fishing. So when the first shore lunch came around, Dad asked how many freshly caught walleye fillets I could eat. I immediately replied, "Maybe one."

together a fire on the Canadian rocks and Dad fried up his walleye specials rolled in flour and fried in butter. I'd changed my mind.

After grandpa cleaned the fish, brother Larry tossed

Fresh fish cooked on the rocks can't taste any better. I wolfed down the first fillet and found there wasn't any more - the others had cleaned the skillet. I licked my plate and promised that would never happen again.

The first meal with fish rolled in flour and grilled in butter was a tough recipe to beat, but others have come and gone which would rate right up there on eating's prize list.

Not long after that, I found a recipe for fish in an open fire which required only a newspaper, waxed paper, onion, salt, pepper and lemon juice.

Tastey Dishes

The idea is to get a fire good and hot, take the fish fillets and sprinkle in all the goodies to taste and wrap them up in the wax paper. Take the newspaper to the water and soak it good. Then wrap the wet paper around the waxed paperwrapped fish and seasonings.

Follow by digging a hole in the coals of the fire, ensuring some of the fire or hot coals surrounds the wet paper wrap. Allow about 10-15 minutes for the fish to steam through and remove from the fire, unwrap and eat away.

I thought that was good until Al Spiers of Indiana talked Minnesota's Danny Gapen into a shore lunch supreme two years ago on the banks of the Upper Mississippi River. Al's recipe called for aluminum wrap, onions, garlic salt and barbeque sauce.

All we had to offer to the meal were small smallmouth bass fillets but Al said it didn't matter. They all tasted good

He took one fish fillet, coated it with garlic salt, laid a layer of thinly cut onions on top of that and started over with

He made about five layers of this salted fish and onion combination on a double thickness of foil, then formed a bowl with the foil and dumped in the barbeque sause to coat the fish.

He then closed the foil around the fish, leaving some room for expansion of the concoction inside and placed the wrapped fish into the coals (as in the newspaper fish). He waited about 15 minutes and uncovered one of the tastiest shores lunches to date.

There are other recipes we've tried for shore lunches and certainly many yet to try. I haven't found a bad one yet, even burnt or not quite done. Fish are tasting better all the

Tastey Dishes

The idea is to get a fire good and hot, take the fish fillets and sprinkle in all the goodies to taste and wrap them up in the wax paper. Take the newspaper to the water and soak it good. Then wrap the wet paper around the waxed paperwrapped fish and seasonings.

Follow by digging a hole in the coals of the fire, ensuring some of the fire or hot coals surrounds the wet paper wrap. Allow about 10-15 minutes for the fish to steam through and remove from the fire, unwrap and eat away.

I thought that was good until Al Spiers of Indiana talked Minnesota's Danny Gapen into a shore lunch supreme two years ago on the banks of the Upper Mississippi River. Al's recipe called for aluminum wrap, onions, garlic salt and

All we had to offer to the meal were small smallmouth bass fillets but Al said it didn't matter. They all tasted good

He took one fish fillet, coated it with garlic salt, laid a layer of thinly cut onions on top of that and started over with another fish fillet.

He made about five layers of this salted fish and onion combination on a double thickness of foil, then formed a bowl with the foil and dumped in the barbeque sause to coat

He then closed the foil around the fish, leaving some room for expansion of the concoction inside and placed the wrapped fish into the coals (as in the newspaper fish). He waited about 15 minutes and uncovered one of the tastiest shores lunches to date.

There are other recipes we've tried for shore lunches and certainly many yet to try. I haven't found a bad one yet, even burnt or not quite done. Fish are tasting better all the

The Knolls Country Club swimming and diving team won the Capitol City Swimming and Diving Championship meet Tuesday, mostly on the strength of its younger swimmers.

In the eight and under age group, girls and boys from KCC won 10 of the 12 events. Of the first 40 events, which included boys and girls eight and under through 12, the KCC swimmers collected 27 first place finishes.

The Knolls relay teams, both freestyle and medley, won half of the offered events.

The YMCA finished with 6511/2 behind KCC's 869. Hillcrest Country Club was third with 5461/2, followed by Lincoln Country Club with 460.

Discover the better way to save.

There's a new way to get the most from your money. It's called The Money Service, TMS, and it's better than a passbook. Better, because it gives you extra things no passbook can. Extra interest. Extra security. And extra convenience.

With a TMS savings account, you receive a magnetically coded plastic identification card. Your card, along with your individual security code, speeds transactions and assures complete security.

With The Money Service, you can choose from two savings account plans. Each pays maximum legal interest, continuously compounded and credited monthly, instead of quarterly.

TMS 80 5.25% TMS 90 5.75%

Now, you can use The Money Service at Hinky Dinky stores in Hastings, Kearney and Grand Island, in addition to all Hinky Dinky stores in Lincoln, Fremont, Wahoo, and the Omaha area. You can make deposits or withdrawals and cash checks. Anytime during Hinky Dinky hours, seven days a week.

You might say The Money Service card pays you to carry it around. Apply for yours now at a participating savings association.

I can offer several suggestions. The first one is the simplest. Pick out two or three staff members who seem to have a little extra interest in their work and in the patients. Tell one of them just exactly how you feel.

On another occasion, tell the second one; find an opportunity to tell the third. If you can open up a channel of personal communication with even one of the three you will have bettered yourself a great deal. The second step is more drastic. Ask for a meeting with the head nurse or administrator: express your feelings fully and openly. Ask for suggestions from them regarding what can be done to help you regain your sense of personhood.

The last resort, of course, and it carries with it its own trauma. is to tell your doctor that you want to be transferred to another facility.

You didn't tell me anything about why you are in the nursing home or what your financial status is, and I realize that these are factors that must be taken into account.

If you cannot change your situation and if the suggestions have not achieved the change you are seeking, write to me again. Meanwhile, keep up your interaction with other patients.

-Staying Ahead-Life Insurance On Child May Not Be Necessary

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

NEW YORK - Should you buy life insurance on your children? Some parents have done so, for reasons they consider sound. But I have some doubts as to whether it's generally a good idea.

In my last column, I argued two points: (1) it is not cheaper to buy insurance when young although, from the insurance ratebook, it might appear so); and (2) although a juvenile policy preserves a child's insurability in case he becomes too ill to buy his own insurance later on, this is a pretty small risk for most people to spend their hardearned money on. Here are some the goal, put money into the more reasons life insurance bank instead. agents give for insuring children. along with another view of the Argument: If your child becomes uninsurable, marries, has children, dies young and his spouse doesn't earn much money, you'll probably have to help support the children. So an insurance policy on your child's life in the long run really protects you.

Reply: You have to make an awful lot of assumptions to make this rationale work out. Again, it's a small risk on which to spend your hard-earned money. But it's the kind of argument that can provoke an emotional reaction in people: They say, "Oh heavens, I don't want to be stuck with supporting grandchildren," and buy a policy, without really thinking

However prices opened substantially lower and skidded to even greater depths as the day wore on.

Apparently the major factors in the decline were a reassessment in the Iowa situation and indications that this country may not be exporting as much grain to the Soviet Union as previously had been anticipated.

Life Insurance On Child May Not Be Necessary

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

NEW YORK - Should you buy life insurance on your children? Some parents have done so, for reasons they consider sound. But I have some doubts as to whether it's Reply: Since the child doesn't generally a good idea.

In my last column, I argued two points: (1) it is not cheaper to buy insurance when young (although, from the insurance ratebook, it might appear so); and (2) although a juvenile policy preserves a child's insurability in case he becomes too ill to buy his own insurance later on, this is a pretty small risk for most people to spend their hardearned money on. Stock Mart Markets At A Glance On Again, 826 advances, 572 declines.

Off Again NEW YORK (AP) -Stocks put together a moderate gain Wednesday in an on-again, offagain rally that analysts said was due mainly to technical forces within the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up nearly 8 points at its midafternoon peak, settled for a 6.80 advance at 831.66.

Advances outnumbered declines for the first time since July 15 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 826 issues up insurance policy on your child's and 572 down among the 1,800

> The NYSE's composite index picked up .33 to 47.53, and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose .64 to 88.83.

Big Board volume slowed to 16.15 million shares from an even 19 million on Tuesday. The Dow followed an erratic course throughout the sessionup 2 at the outset and down 2 later in the morning before rising until midafternoon and then slipping back again.

Brokers said the irregular pattern suggested some continuing hesitancy among investors over inflation prospects.

On Wednesday, Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said he was concerned that Russian purchases of U.S. grain might lead to a sharp increase in food prices in this country.

In spite of that, analysts said, it was not at all surprising for the market to encounter some buying interest after the broad declines that had driven the Dow down nearly 57 points over the past two weeks.

Some market-watchers reported support for prices from short-covering-the repurchase of borrowed shares sold earlier by investors hoping to profit from a declining market.

General Motors, a frequent pacesetter in market trends because of its size and key position in the economy, rose 2 to 511/4. The company listed an 8.8 per cent increase in second quarter profits after Tuesday's close.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .27 to 89.96.

Engelhard quoted a silver base price of $5.025 down 6 cents and a price for fabricated silver of $5.151 down 6.1 cents. Chicago (AP) - Major farm futures prices closed the limit lower on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

This was a turnabout from the last few days when most commodity prices were bounding upward, propelled mostly by reports of serious dry conditions in Iowa.

However prices opened substantially lower and skidded to even greater depths as the day leaders said Wednesday the Ford administration has built its optimistic economic forecasts on false hope, and warned of "the very real danger of a deeper, more serious recession," in the near future.

Apparently the major factors in the decline were a reassessment in the Iowa situation and indications that this country may not be exporting as much grain to the Soviet Union as previously had been anticipated.

Despite some positive economic signs, AFL-CIO President George Meany said onethird of America's productive capacity remains idle, consumer purchasing power is down, real wages are down and more than 12 million workers are either unable to find jobs or full-time employment.

"That is not the end of the recession," he said. "The question I'd like to ask is, 'If the recession has ended, when does

Nation Placed Closer To Harnessing Fusion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -The nation's energy research chief announced a scientific advance that has placed the nation closer to tapping nuclear fusion, the same source of energy radiated by the stars.

"Fusion provides a really infinite source of energy," Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., administrator of the federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA). said Wednesday.

He told a news conference that scientists have succeeded in attaining reactor-level fusion temperatures and a tenfold increase in containment time at Lawrence Laboratory in nearby Livermore, Calif.

The push toward fusion, which ERDA calls one of the most desirable potential new energy sources, is being made because the major fuel used in fusion, deuterium, can be extracted from ordinary water

But Seamans said the big problem is to create and confine gas of fusion fuels at 100 million degrees centigrade long enough to generate useful energy. Seamans said experimenters

succeeded in attaining 130 million degrees centigrade and confining it for five onethousandths of a second. "The important thing is that what we predicted would happen ... and it really did happen that way," he said.

"We are building up a scientific understanding of fusion, he added. "I would expect that in the next four, five or six years we really will be able to demonstrate that fusion is scientifically feasible.'

Seamans said the federal government will spend $300 million this year on research into ways of containing the fusion process.

National Academy of Engineering said that if all the research is successful, on fusion and other potential sources of energy, the United States will be assured of just about all the electricity it will need by the year would join local police on the and countersuits over school integration, and the judge who ordered the plan said federal marshals would see that it is implemented.

Boston's busing plan is a revision of last year's violenceplagued integration attempts. U.S. District Court Judge

James F. Gordon, under orders from an appeals court to come up with an integration plan for the Louisville area, on Wednesday ordered the busing of 22,600 school children. The joint Louisville city and Jefferson County school district has a total enrollment of more than 140,000 pupils. About 19 per cent are black. Gordon warned those "who would resort to public disorder and violence" to "think twice." He did not single out anyone by name, but much of the opposition to the integration of Louisville schools has come from the Ku Klux Klan and a group called Concerned Parents Inc.

Police in Louisville and Jefferson County have said that steps will be taken to avoid the sporadic violence that wracked Boston last year. School officials have said they will hire several hundred "monitors" to ride buses to insure that order is maintained

In Boston, city officials announced Wednesday that riottrained federal marshals will ioin more than 2,000 state and local police officers on the streets when schools open in September. In addition, National Guard agents will be stationed as observers in potential trouble U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. has ordered a new citywide integration plan their locations around town into the completed building, things are running smoothly, according to Maxfield

"Usually you'd expect there to be some tie-ups at the loading docks or something, but we haven't even had that," he said. The Social Security Administration moved one day and was operating from the Federal Building the next. The National Park Service is in the process of moving in this week. Eight other agencies are already operating out of the building. The Veterans Administration, which started moving Tuesday, should be finished by Aug. 1, Maxiteld said. And by sometime in October, Maxfield plans to have what he calls a "very complicated situation" simplified considerably To Maxfield, you see, moving people into buildings is "just as specialists to tear down, important as building reassemble and recalibrate something."

Nation Placed Closer To Harnessing Fusion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -The nation's energy research chief announced a scientific advance that has placed the nation closer to tapping nuclear fusion, the same source of energy radiated by the stars.

"Fusion provides a really infinite source of energy," Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., administrator of the federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), said Wednesday.

He told a news conference that scientists have succeeded in attaining reactor-level fusion temperatures and a tenfold increase in containment time at Lawrence Laboratory in nearby Livermore, Calif.

The push toward fusion, which ERDA calls one of the most desirable potential new energy sources, is being made because the major fuel used in fusion, deuterium, can be extracted from ordinary water.

But Seamans said the big problem is to create and confine gas of fusion fuels at 100 million degrees centigrade long enough to generate useful energy.

Seamans said experimenters succeeded in attaining 130 million degrees centigrade and confining it for five onethousandths of a second.

"The important thing is that what we predicted would happen ... and it really did happen that way," he said.

tific understanding of fusion," he added. "I would expect that in the next four, five or six years we really will be able to demonstrate that fusion is scientifically feasible.'

Seamans said the federal government will spend $300 million this year on research into ways of containing the fusion process.

The former president of the National Academy of Engineering said that if all the research is successful, on fusion and other potential sources of energy, the United States will be assured of just about all the electricity it will need by the year streets when a new busing plan tegration, and the judge who ordered the plan said federal marshals would see that it is implemented. Boston's busing plan is a revision of last year's violenceplagued integration attempts.

U.S. District Court Judge James F. Gordon, under orders from an appeals court to come up with an integration plan for the Louisville area, on Wednesday ordered the busing of 22,600 school children. The joint Louisville city and Jefferson County school district has a total enrollment of more than 140,000 pupils. About 19 per cent are black. Gordon warned those "who would resort to public disorder and violence" to "think twice." He did not single out anyone by name, but much of the opposition to the integration of Louisville schools has come from the Ku Klux Klan and a group called Concerned Parents Inc. Police in Louisville and Jefferson County have said that steps will be taken to avoid the sporadic violence that wracked Boston last year. School officials have said they will hire several hundred "monitors" to ride buses to insure that order is maintained.

In Boston, city officials announced Wednesday that riottrained federal marshals will join more than 2,000 state and local police officers on the streets when schools open in September.

In addition, National Guard units will be mobilized and FBI agents will be stationed as observers in potential trouble U.S. District Court Judge W

Arthur Garrity Jr. has ordered a new citywide integration plan that requires the busing of about 26,000 students.

New Federal Building daughter, Laura, Lincoln; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Occupation Goes Well McGuire, Lincoln; grand-

By WES ALBERS Star Staff Writer

There may be a telephone outlet out of place here and there, but the new Federal Building, 15th and O Sts., is ready for occupancy. And Larry Maxfield is the man in charge of putting people (and desks and wastebaskets and . . .) in their places.

The secret, he says, is plan-

Back when the Federal Building was just a concrete shell, the federal agencies in town, at the direction of Maxfield, a General Services Administration employe, were counting their tables, chairs, filing cabinets — anything that would be moved when the time

"That was quite a job in itself," said Maxfield, holding up a booklet itemizing the agencies' possessions, everything from the Soil Conservation Service's 98 wastebaskets to the U.S. Geological Survey's meat scale.

Then there were the office layouts. Detailed floor plans were drawn, showing everything from the location of desks to the placement of shelves.

And finally, Maxfield said, there were contracts, hiring reassemble and recalibrate something."

specialized equipment — like the Soil Conservation Service's Funeral Home, 245 No. 27th. camera "so large it takes up two rooms. 'All I know is I've got to move it," Maxfield said. "I've seen the equipment, but what it does I can't tell you.' Now that the time has come to move the 30 or so agencies from their locations around town into the completed building, things are running smoothly, according to Maxfield

"Usually you'd expect there to be some tie-ups at the loading docks or something, but we haven't even had that," he said. The Social Security Administration moved one day and was operating from the Federal Building the next. The National Park Service is in the process of moving in this week. Eight other agencies are already operating out of the building.

The Veterans Administration, which started moving Tuesday, should be finished by Aug. 1, Maxfield said. And by sometime in October, Maxfield plans to have what he calls a "very complicated situation" simplified considerably.

To Maxfield, you see, moving people into buildings is "just as specialists to tear down, important as building
